Scope of work:

The Denver Sheriff Department Competency Restoration and Transition Unit (RTU) opened initially in May 2021 with 12 beds as a pilot project between Denver Health and Hospital Authority (DHHA) and the Colorado Department of Human Services (CDHS) to address the lengthy wait time for hospital beds for individuals who were found incompetent to proceed (ITP). The 12 beds are part of a total of 48 beds at the Denver County Jail where the other 36 beds are for individuals with serious mental illness, who are focused on stabilization of their symptoms prior to transitioning them successfully to the community. The program was expanded in 2023 to add 6 additional beds for a total of 18 beds.

In accordance with this contract, the program will consistently accommodate the designated eighteen 18 beds for individuals court ordered to receive an inpatient competence to proceed evaluation or sanity/mental condition evaluation and inpatient competency restoration treatment. Those beds will be housed within the Men's Mental Health Transition Unit, which has a robust and well-established mental health treatment program. The existing treatment program includes wraparound services and ongoing mental health treatment for those with such needs throughout the duration of their incarceration. Traditionally, when one is restored to competency, they are returned to general population; however, in an effort to support continuity of care, RTU will partner with the DSD to transition those deemed competent to proceed out of the designated restoration bed and into a mental health treatment bed within the same milieu (Men's Mental Health Treatment Unit).

Supportive services, including restoration education materials and mental health services, will continue to be offered to those individuals until they are sentenced to the department of corrections, transitioned to a psychiatric hospital (i.e. if they are found Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity), transitioned to the community, are removed voluntarily, or are removed due to rule infractions. Allowing participants to remain in the treatment program throughout the court process, while also remaining in the facility in the district of their criminal case, is in line with best practices of competency restoration. This practice allows for minimal disruptions and facility transfers, keeps most participants closer to their public defenders, family and significant others, and minimizes the chances for decompensation after a competency finding. All parties recognize the CDHS supports such practices yet will not have influence over one's placement within the jail once restored to competency or otherwise discharged from restoration treatment. Prioritization of restoration beds within that milieu will be for those in need of initial admission.
