Scope of work:

SavATree performs Emerald Ash Borer (“EAB”) pesticide application services for ash trees located on publicly owned property. Forestry’s goal is to slow Emerald Ash Borer population growth, which in turn slows the rate at which tree mortality advances. Insecticide treatments are more viable in residential or urban areas where trees are readily accessible. Cumulative economic costs of treatment were at least fourfold lower than costs of removing and replacing trees as they declined. Denver has an estimated 330,000 ash trees, a large and important portion of our urban tree canopy. The objective of the contract is to treat approximately 30% of treatable Public Right-of-Way (PRW) ash trees annually.
