Exhibit to Application

- Rezoning Review Criteria
  - o Denver Comprehensive Plan 2040
    - Equity Goals: Goal 1, Strategy A: Increase development of housing units close to transit and mixed-use developments.
    - Equity Goals: Goal 2, Strategy A: Create a greater mix of housing options in every neighborhood for all individuals and families.
    - Environmentally Resilient, Goal 8 Strategy A: Promote Infill Development where infrastructure and services are already in place.
    - Strong & Authentic Neighborhoods, Goal 8, Strategy C: Ensure neighborhood plan recommendations are consistent with the local vision and with this comprehensive plan
    - Create a city of “complete” neighborhoods
  - o Blueprint Denver
    - Future Neighborhood Context: General Urban. This area has been identified as predominately multi-unit structure. 1-unit and 2-unit residential and low scale mixed-use are embedded within the multi-unit areas. Block patterns are generally regular with consistent alley access. Buildings are medium scale and close to the street.
    - Future Place: High Residential. A high mix of uses throughout, including many large scale multi-unit residential uses. Commercial uses are prevalent. Buildings are generally the tallest of the residential places in this context. There is high lot coverage and shallow setbacks.
  - o Consistency with Adopted Plans – East Central Neighborhood
    - Land Use & Built Form Concepts: Incentivize the preservation of structures and features that contribute to the established character of an area, even if they are not designated as landmarks or historical districts. Goals 6,7,8,9
    - Land Use & Built Form Concepts, Concept #1: Enhanced Residential Design Quality Area: Standards to preserve traditional neighborhood character by adjusting design standards to be more consistent with the existing architecture in the neighborhood, and encouraging context sensitive additions instead of demolition.
    - Recommendations – Building Heights (L3): Allow taller buildings when significant community benefits are provided.
- Review Criteria Narrative
  - o Justifying Circumstances: Since the date of approval of the existing Zone District, there has been a change to such a degree that the proposed rezoning is in the public interest. The change was City adopted plans – Comprehensive Plan 2040, Blueprint Denver and East Central Area Plan (2020).
  - o Consistency with Neighborhood Context, Zone District Purpose and Intent Statement. The requested G-MU-3 rezoning is a multi-unit district allowing urban house, duplex, row house, garden court, town house, and apartment building forms. The tallest building form has a maximum height of five stories.

- The current PUD zoning is not consistent with the surrounding neighborhood and has outlived its usefulness. This new zoning designation will fit the general character of the area; building height is in line with the surrounding neighborhood, and elimination of the PUD will provide for a better mobility balance with less reliance on cars.

Written Narrative Explaining Reason for Request

Built in 2002 and designed specifically for therapy clients, the building has seen significantly reduced use and increased vacancy due to the lingering effects of COVID and structural changes in the office market that have been occurring over the prior number of years. Many therapists have moved to either a fully remote or hybrid therapy model, thereby eliminating or lessening the demand for office space. The entire office market is undergoing structural changes and many office buildings are having to reevaluate their uncertain futures. Being located in a predominantly residential area of Denver, rezoning the property will allow for the addition of desperately needed housing, reduced parking and traffic demand in the immediate area, and will allow the building to be brought up to current energy efficiency standards. Our intent is to keep the building substantially in its current form, preserving the beautiful and aesthetically pleasing architectural details that are currently in place – we are not planning any additional stories or façade changes other than what is required to adhere to current building codes and life safety.

Re: Intent to File a Rezoning Request for 750 E 9th Street

Dear Neighbor,

We are reaching out to notify you of our intent to file for a rezoning of the property located at 750 E 9th Street from PUD 499 to G-MU-5 or G-MU-3. Currently the property operates as an office building and our intent is to convert it to multifamily and build between 6-8 residential apartments. The current building, built in 2002, is a beautifully designed red brick building with an underground parking garage for up to 11 cars. We plan to work within the current design and enact only minimal changes to the façade (namely, adding windows for life safety and to bring more light into the interior of the building).

Why the Request: As you may be aware the office market has and is undergoing substantial structural changes nationwide, which has significantly reduced demand and restructured how offices are being used. This particular building has the added issue of being primarily built, and designed, for therapists and their clients – a market which is undergoing the most significant of changes. The building is lightly occupied and has no prospects for full capacity.

The rezoning requests fits with the City of Denver's Comprehensive Plan 2040, Blueprint Denver, and East Central Area Plan – more information can be found here (https://www.denvergov.org/content/dam/denvergov/Portals/Denveright/documents/comp-plan/Denver\_Comprehensive\_Plan\_2040.pdf), and will be a welcome addition to the current makeup of the immediate neighborhood.

Impacts on the Neighborhood: We believe the rezoning will have a positive impact on the neighborhood through reduced traffic counts, added housing for the city's severely constrained housing market, and bringing the building up to current energy efficient standards.

- Traffic & Parking: Office creates a higher demand for parking and traffic; rezoning the property to allow multi-family will reduce parking and traffic. The building currently has 11 underground garage parking space and also uses the Church parking lot for clients during the business day. By converting to apartments we will have at least a 1-to-1 parking ratio for apartments and we will no longer need to use the Church parking lot.
- Added Housing Stock: One of the top concerns for city residents and leaders is the lack of housing in the city. By converting under-utilized office space to residences we can make a small but positive dent in the city's housing stock.
- Energy Efficiency: The building, first built in 2002, has not been updated since completion. Energy standards in 2002 are severely outdated and inefficient. After the rezoning we plan to do our part by employing the latest in energy efficient standards (heating, cooling, windows, etc.).

While not necessary, it would be appreciated if you would support our application to rezone the property. Enclosed is a letter that can be filled out and returned to us for submission to the city as part of our application package.

Should you have any questions please feel free to contact us via email at modom@rcg-llc.com.

Max Odom

15. Explain in detail the legal basis for the proposal: either (a) an error in the zoning map as approved by City Council, or (b) the changed or changing conditions that in the public interest make the map amendment necessary.

As the neighborhood has developed over the years, there has been an increased demand for our type of facility. We have outgrown our existing facility in terms of number of tenants we can house. In order to install the required new therapeutic pools and other needed facilities, we need to build a new structure.

16 State the land use and development proposed for the property to be rezoned. Include the time schedule (if any) for development. The time schedule aims for completion by Summer 2001.

The development is a two storey clinic or office, limited to Holistic, Naturopathic Practitioners and educators, including, but not limited to, massage therapists, chiropractors, pre and perinatal educators, acupuncturists, rollers, yoga practitioners, watsu, cranial sacral therapists or similiar type practices ~~with garden level parking~~ with garden level parking constructed in similiar design to the National Historic Registered Consulate next door.

17. Describe the nature and effect of the proposed amendment.

The proposed amendment allows for reduced street parking through construction of a building which will provide treatment rooms for Naturopathic Healers, a workshop space, off-street parking and a therapeutic Watsu Pool. Practitioner tenants shall be required to park on the church lot so that clients may park on site. The growing demand for Naturopathic care requires an expansion of our existing facility and the desire of the neighborhood to have a classic structure built where there has been an open parking lot warrant this proposed zoning change.

EXHIBIT A

3. WRITTEN STATEMENT

3a. The proposed PUD is a structure to provide naturopathic and holistic practitioners treatment rooms similiar in nature to the National Historic Registered Building across the alley, The Consulate Healing Center, which has been operating in the neighborhood for over seven years. A meeting room/ workshop space as well as a theraputic Watsu pool will be included. While the tenants of the building are licensed degreed professionals, the market served by the PUD are individuals in the neighborhood and surrounding neighborhoods who are interested in improving their health and happiness.

3b. The proposed PUD satisfies the Denver Comprehensive Plan for our neighborhood in the following ways:

Parking Principal parking for the Consulate Healing Center Annex is substantially below grade and minimizes visual impact in the neighborhood. To preclude the possibility of increased parking density on the street, 14 additional off-street parking spaces for 750 E. 9th Avenue are provided pursuant to companion application at 901 Emerson Street.

Encouraging Business Diversity Our building is a "small pedestrian oriented building" which encourages the small business practices of individuals in naturopathic and holistic health practices. Diversity is encouraged because unlike practitioners in our existing health center, the annex will have a chiropractor, a yoga teacher, and Watsu practitioners.

Historic Preservation Issues The Consulate Healing Center Annex will look very similiar to the National Historic Consulate Healing Center Building. The Annex's "flagstone sidewalk" will be "preserved and repaired". Streetscape improvements will be undertaken and the structure will be "architecturally interesting" and "historic" in appearance.

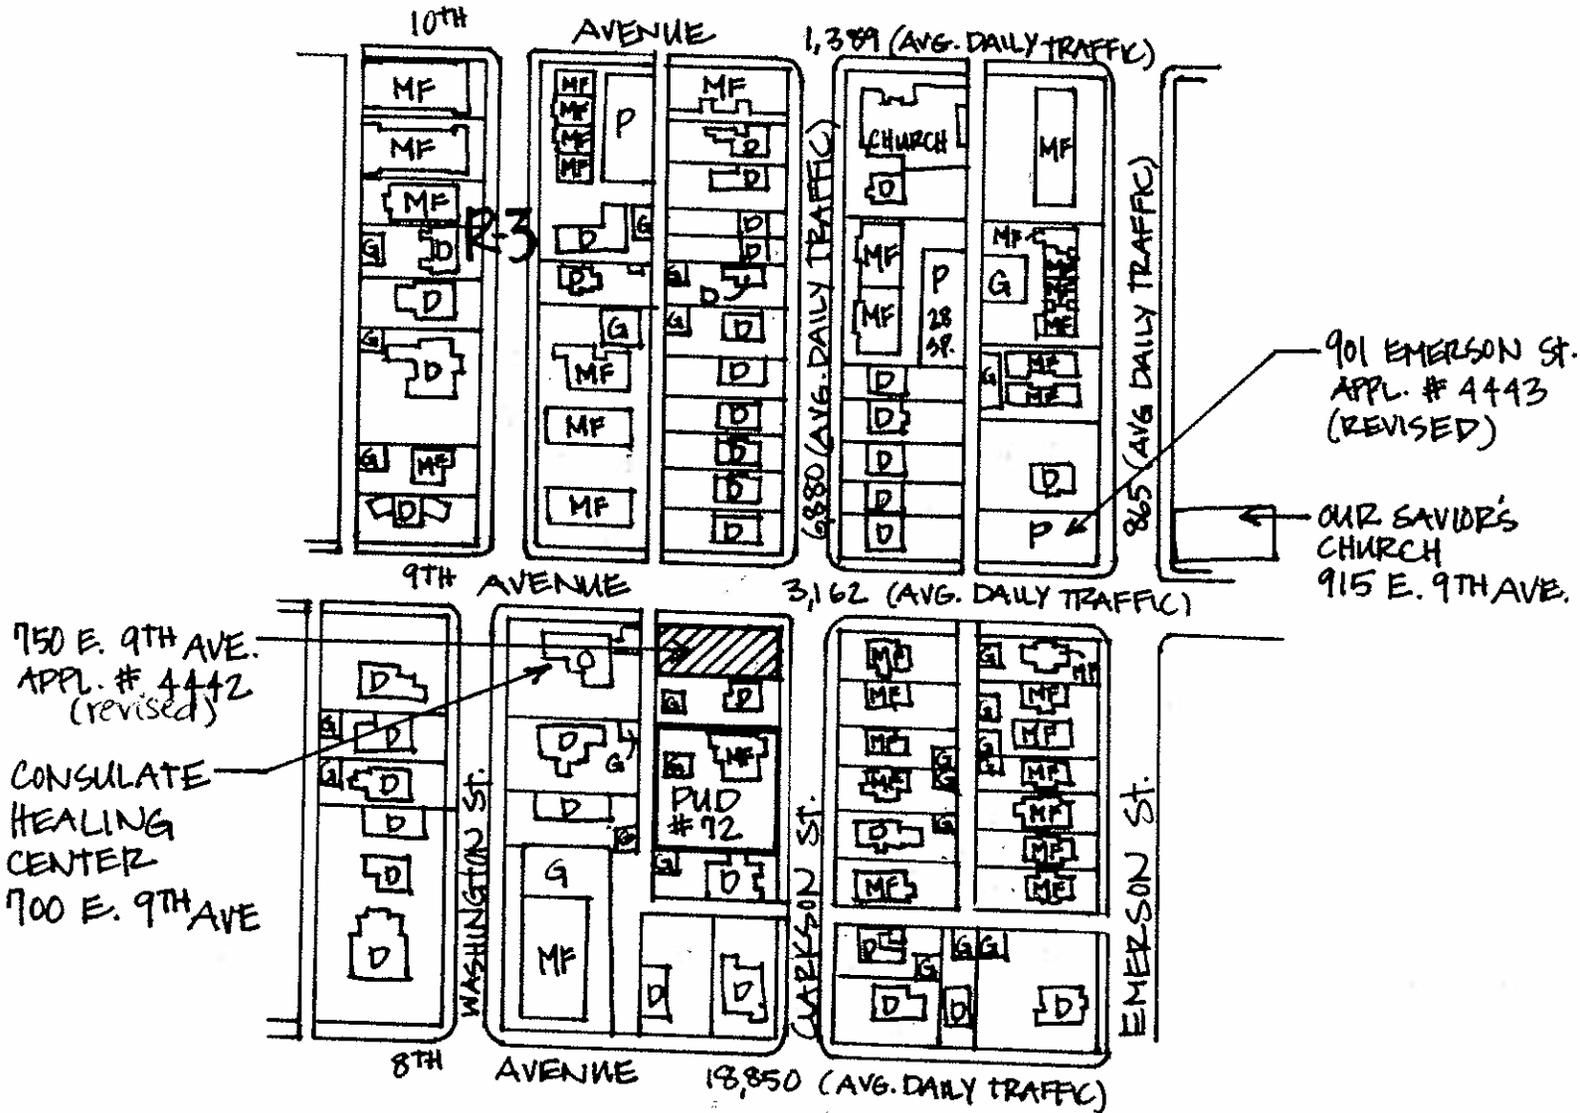

3c. The proposed PUD District will reflect the architecture of the Landmark Mansion, now called The Consulate Healing Center Building. It will appear residential in nature with brick and wood surfaces similiar in height to the surrounding structures. It will fit in with the more historic and elegant buildings in the neighborhood.

Setback Exceptions

Your comment:

Dear Zoning Board Members,

Thank you for this opportunity to submit my comments in opposition of the proposed rezoning of this beautiful property. I am a multi-lingual, multi-cultural Doctor of Psychology in private practice at 750 E, 9th Avenue, Suite 109, Denver, CO 80203, since 2012. I have been teaching dance at the same location in a different suite upstairs since 2006.

In 2001, a friend who was a practitioner of five element acupuncture planning to soon move into our then newly constructed building showed it to me prior to its completion and I was stunned by the beauty of the interior clearly designed for healing. It was obvious that the creator of the building, Karlton Terry has poured his heart, soul and creativity into constructing something that was completely dedicated to healing arts. Even now, all these years later, it is obvious that he spared no expense creating a unique, welcoming, and beautiful space.

This building became the only place where I wanted to base my private practice. My first private practice was briefly located elsewhere, and I had to wait for a space to become available because no one was moving out and many practitioners were there from the beginning having no plans to move anywhere else.

Our building remains the only center dedicated to healing arts, which allows all of us to refer and introduce our often multi-lingual, multi-cultural clients to other practitioners that our clients would not discover on their own due to lack of knowledge of existence of the resources that may be available and that we offer in the building. Having many healing arts present in one location makes them accessible to individuals from different walks of life including minorities, such as my Hispanic clients, newly arrived Ukrainian and Russian refugees with no transportation, and LGBTQ clients many of whom have been grateful to have our healing center within the walking distance from their homes or community centers or medical clinics around Downtown.

The value of the diversity of the healing practices housed together within our building must not be overlooked. Many practitioners work with under-served populations and minorities who may not have access to these services otherwise because they have no transportation. Our location is within walking distance of many neighborhoods and easily accessible by public transport.

The building is unique. It has a beautiful yoga room upstairs that has antique plaster fixtures from Argentina and exquisite bamboo parquet floor. Unfortunately, it was converted into more offices by the current owner, but it probably could be returned to its full glory. There is a Japanese Watsu pool on the first floor, which is extremely valuable and rare for Watsu therapies and massage. Unfortunately, the current owners of the building have not promoted or utilized these resources, but they remain available to integrate more diverse practices into an already busy and full healing center expanding further its offerings to the community and financial stability of the property.

The interdisciplinary healing arts that are present in our building are essential to the community and they must continue being presented together in one central location. This was Karlton Terry's vision to fill a void in the community and he succeeded. And all of us that have remained in the building for many years have carried forward his vision.

Our building is extremely busy. Most of the tele-practitioners have left after the pandemic because they no longer needed office space. Then many new practitioners that work in person moved in. The building is full. According to the building website, there are no vacant office spaces. Our waiting rooms are full every day, including Saturdays.

I know of no other integrative healing center in Capitol Hill or other central neighborhoods. I do not know of another healing center anywhere else other than in Boulder.

Any change in the zoning of the building for any other use will carry a risk of a great loss of services that the healing center is providing for an extremely densely populated community of several ethnically, economically, and culturally diverse communities.

Please do not hesitate to contact me at 720-434-4342 if I may be able to answer any questions that you may have or provide additional information.

Thank you very much for reading this note. This matter is very important to me and to all of us who are practicing in our beautiful building and serving our community. I appreciate your time and attention.

Warm regards,

Nina Pesochinsky, PsyD, LPC

This building is called The Capitol Hill Healing Center. It is a Healing Arts building which houses 23 offices occupied by many Practitioners in the Healing Arts discipline such as Mental Health Therapists, Massage Therapists, an Acupuncture Studio, a Chiropractor, a Natural Path Practitioner and many others who offer services for health and well being. I myself, Linda K Rice, am a Licensed Clinical Social Worker. My clients include members of the Military who use their free counseling sessions with the Military One Source, employees of companies using free counseling with their Employee Assistance Programs, and I am credentialed with most insurance companies. Most of my clients come into the building for face to face counseling. We have 3 waiting rooms in the building which are occupied by patients waiting to see their particular Therapeutic Practitioner. We are open seven days a week. Many people walk to The Capital Hill Healing Center as they live in the neighborhood. I have practiced in this building for over 14 years. I and my colleagues are heart sick over the possibility that we may lose this beautiful building because the owner wants to sell and make a profit. There are numerous apartment buildings in the area and the need for another, in place of a unique Healing Center, does not serve members of this community. With the above information, I am requesting that the Planning Board oppose this rezoning request

I'm writing to object to the proposed zone change for the building at 750 E 9th Ave. I'm a psychotherapist who rents an office in this building. I've read the proposal which states that one of the reasons for this proposed change is that therapists are now seeing clients virtually and are no longer seeing clients in person. While it's true that virtual sessions are now an option for both therapists and clients, most of my clients prefer in-person sessions. This is true for many of the psychotherapists I know. The need for more office space for psychotherapists is crucial as most of us are now going back to working with clients in person. It's even more crucial because more people are seeking therapy now than before. Taking care of one's mental health is now recognized as essential as getting a yearly physical.

This building was originally conceived of as a healing center - the Capitol Hill Healing Arts Center. It's not only psychotherapists who have offices at CHHC; there are acupuncturists, massage therapists, Reiki practitioners, hypnotherapists and a nurse practitioner who specializes in psychotherapeutic medications. It truly is a healing arts center.

Many of my clients live in this area - Capitol Hill, Congress Park, all along Speer Blvd, and Wash Park. This building and the practitioners who rent space provide a valuable service to the surrounding community. I've had clients see other practitioners here for massage and acupuncture. And have referred friends and spouses of clients to other psychotherapists in the building. It really is a healing center. There's nothing like it in this area.

During Covid we couldn't see clients in person. Many of us were fortunate to be able to continue to offer services virtually. The practitioners who could, continued to rent space in the Center but many couldn't afford to continue paying rent resulting in offices being vacant reducing the income for the owner. I know the owner must have suffered significant financial losses as a result. As of today, all of the offices are occupied. It might make financial sense to either sell the building to a developer or to gut and remodel the offices into apartments, but the loss of this asset to the community would be significant. And, I believe, now that the building is fully occupied, the income for the owner will increase and be consistent.

With regard to the proposal's assertion that the center is no longer needed; that instead more residential spaces are needed - that isn't supported by the facts. I did a google search for office rentals and for residential - apartment or home - rentals in the area. There's an abundance of residential offerings and only one office space that would possibly work for a psychotherapist. And nothing that would work for any of the other practitioners. The offices in this building are specifically designed to meet the needs of a variety of practitioners. From this simple google search it seems that office space for practitioners is needed much more than more residential space for this area.

The building itself is beautiful and the offices and layout are specifically designed for practitioners to have the optimal space to do their work. I've never had an office or a building environment that was as supportive of the work I do as this one. I know the other practitioners who rent here feel the same way.

If this building is replaced by a residential apartment building, it will be a loss to so many people - clients, practitioners and the community. I've had people who are just walking by 750 ask me what we do in the building. It often leads to them coming in and getting the card or cards for practitioners in the building. The clients I've told about this rezoning are so upset that they're taking the time to write to you directly. It's a place where people who need healing feel comfortable and cared for. The building itself and the understanding between practitioners of what kind of atmosphere supports healing is an important part of this. I've worked in offices in beautiful buildings that have lawyers, accountants, photographers. The atmosphere is completely different. The clients who have seen me in both kinds of spaces not only prefer this center, but aren't happy with the idea of losing this kind of safe space.

The proposal states that the intention is to preserve the uniqueness and beauty of the building modifying it only on the inside. I have little confidence that what is written in the proposal will be honored especially if it's sold to a developer. The proposed change is for a 3-5 story building. This building is 2 floors.

I encourage the Board to consider this proposed zoning change carefully with regard to the needs of the community and the uniqueness of what is offered. This building is devoted to supporting practitioners who serve healing and well-being in the variety of ways we all do. This building and what is offered here is much needed at this time.

Hello Tony,

My name is Crystal Siddall and I wanted to reach out to you in regards to the zoning change for 750 E. 9th Ave. This building is full of medical practices that individuals including myself use. I see a therapist who runs her private practice in this building. She just moved in there after renting a space off of 10th street and Logan. Her original space was just not safe. If the city rezone this building that leaves hardly anywhere for these private practices to go. The amount of rental space for practices in that area is far less sparse than apartments. The ripple affect for this rezoning idea can seriously negatively impact a lot of us. Especially for someone like myself who has lived in the Denver area her whole life. Please reconsider and keep the building as is.

Have a great day.

Crystal

I am writing to object to the proposed zone change for the Capital Healing Arts Center at 750 East 9th Avenue. I am a patient of one of the practitioners who has an office in this building. It is a lovely building and an asset to Capital Hill and the surrounding areas. One of the reasons given for the proposed change is that therapists are no longer seeing their clients in person, and therefore are not using their offices. I vehemently disagree. I see my therapist IN PERSON for every appointment and so do all the other people I see in the building. I feel safe and protected in this beautiful building. It is truly a healing center. Please consider this proposal carefully with regards to the needs of the community that use it.

Kind Regards

Joan Rowland

I am a Licensed Clinical Social Worker in private practice serving families who struggle with separation and divorce. I office in the Capital Hill Healing Center at 750 E 9th Ave, with other wonderful practitioners. Our unique building is a place of solace and healing for so many! The safety and security of this unique building is something that we will not be able to recreate if our building and those in control of zoning give in to creating yet another high rise dwelling in an already overcrowded area. Our center offers something that benefits the community at a different level. Our city needs healing not just housing units. Please consider the need for healing professionals in the heart of an urban community and the accessibility that the Capital Hill Healing Center provides. Help us preserve our professional impact on a community that genuinely needs our services.

Good evening,

I'm emailing you with regard to a proposed zoning change at 750 E 9th Ave. The zoning is specifically for the Capitol Hill Healing Arts Center. The hearing for this proposal is scheduled for February 15.

My therapist is based out of this building. I began seeing her virtually in 2020, and have been seeing her in person for almost a year now in her office at 750 E 9th Ave. It's been extremely convenient for me as I live about 5 minutes away, parking is easy, access is easy, and I know how much she enjoys her office space.

I always see guests in the building visiting other practitioners. The need for this building space for them to offer their services is clearly needed, and heavily utilized by clients.

I encourage the Board to consider this proposed zoning change carefully with regard to the needs of the community and the uniqueness of what is offered. This building is much needed at this time.

Thank you,
Allison Lewis

To Whom it May Concern,

I'm emailing you in regard to a proposed zoning change at 750 E 9th Ave. The zoning is specifically for the Capitol Hill Healing Arts Center.

I've been a patient of a practitioner at the CHHC (Capitol Hill Healing Arts Center) for almost a year and am very upset to hear of the proposed rezoning and conversion of the building. The CHHC has been a sanctuary of healing for me personally, and to lose such a space would be devastating. The loss of such a space, as well as all the inconveniences of a major construction project, would be a huge burden to the businesses and members of the surrounding community as well.

The offices are dedicated to practitioners focused on healing modalities for the body, mind and spirit. Walking through the doors evokes a feeling of sacredness and calm that I have never experienced anywhere else. It is quiet, private, and very peaceful - not a typical office building or medical complex. I have an online business that I run out of a small, multi-use office building and there is a night and day difference from the atmosphere of the CHHC. The office building I work out of houses a security company, a construction company, a recording studio, a small used car dealer, and more. There are times when it is loud, dirty, busy, and chaotic. I am happy to run my small business out of this type of space, but I can't imagine going there for any kind of care or healing. Not all spaces are conducive to what these practitioners offer. To suggest that it would be a simple matter for these practitioners to just find another office space does not take into account the environment needed for people to feel comfortable and safe in their search for well-being. People need places like the CHHC, especially after the turmoil and strain of the last few years. Virtual appointments are wonderful, but there is no substitute for the profound shifts that can happen when given in-person care within a safe space.

The conversion to residential space, as well as adding a 3rd or 4th story to the building, would mean that most, if not all, of the lovely existing finishes and fixtures of the current offices would go into a landfill. The surrounding residents and business would have to deal with at least a year of noisy heavy machinery, closed down streets, and construction debris, just to create a few more, probably overpriced, apartments in an area that already has many unoccupied (non-affordable) housing units. The horrible waste of time and resources, negative impact on the surrounding community, and loss of access to essential therapies in an intentionally designed space, far outweigh any potential gain from converting the CHHC to a residential building. The CHHC is a peaceful anchor for the community and provides so much to so many, myself included.

Sincerely,

Caroline Reel

I'm writing to let you know that I was planning to be at tomorrow's meeting regarding the rezoning of 750 E 9th Ave, Capitol Hill Healing Arts Center. I submitted an email last week that will be included in the board's package. Thank you for including that.

I was planing to attend and speak at the hearing tomorrow but will be unable to because of 2 client emergencies. One of my clients has just been diagnosed with a very serious illness and the other has been suicidal. Although I'm deeply concerned about the possibility of the center being replaced by apartments and hoped to communicate that in person tomorrow, my first priority is my responsibility to the well being of my clients. I'm sorry I won't be able to attend. I would appreciate it if you could share this with the Board members. I didn't want them to think that it wasn't important enough for me to be there tomorrow.

Thank you for your service to the city in this way.

The Capitol Hill Healing Center was build in 2022 by Karlton Terry as a healing center (formerly the Consulate Healing Center). I am an original tenant of this building. I knew Karlton personally. This building has widely served the community with mental health and healing practices for over 20 years. We, as tenants, have our businesses tied to this building. It would be a tragedy and disservice to the community to allow this building to be rezoned residential, as well as displacing all of our businesses. Additional residences would also pose an additional parking issue. I strongly oppose rezoning and ask that the City consider the needs of the community and our businesses.

To City Council, re: the rezoning of 750 East 9th Avenue:

Dear Councilmembers,

My name is Katie Hoadley. I'm a Denver resident and I have lived in the Capitol Hill neighborhood since 2016. I have been a client at the Capitol Hill Healing Center since the summer of 2019. This center is a fantastic resource for the wellbeing and mental health of residents in Capitol Hill. I have benefited tremendously from its location in my neighborhood, as it is well within walking distance from my apartment.

I understand that there is an effort to rezone this building in favor of it being refitted as an apartment building. I must voice my opinion that this building should remain as it is: a critical mental health resource for residents of Capitol Hill.

While I understand that the City of Denver is undergoing a housing crisis, apartments in newer buildings, such as 750 East 9th Avenue (c. 2002), typically retain pricing that is out of reach for individuals such as myself. I make well below the median annual salary in Denver of $61,700. The average Denver rental, according to the Denver Post in January of this year, is $1,838; to afford this rent and not be at a significant rent burden, an individual would have to bring in a salary of nearly $80,000/year. As someone who is employed at a non-profit, this is out of my reach and the reach of many young Denver residents; this apartment building will only aid in housing those who are comfortably in the middle class.

I am, however, able to afford the services provided by my therapist, at $25 per session as my co-pay. Many therapists in the area do not accept insurance or are out of my health insurance network. I rely on this mental health service and my ability to access it easily.

Additionally, it is cited by the owner of 750 E. 9th Street that many therapists are moving to hybrid or fully remote positions; a quick review of therapy apps such as Betterhelp reveals poor business practices where private mental health data is shared with companies such as Facebook and Google, expensive rates, and claims that they burden therapists with unrealistic caseloads. I value my ability to visit my therapist in-person and in a clean and safe environment.

Denver needs to prioritize affordable mental health resources for its community over the profit driven rental market. Please take time to consider the overall benefits that the Capitol Hill Healing Center provides for its community.

Thank you for your time,

Katie Hoadley

Dear Council Members,

I am writing in regard to the vote to rezone my office building at 750 E 9th Ave Denver 80203 on April 10, 2023. The name of our building, The Capitol Hill Healing Center, is exactly what the name implies. The building was constructed in 2002 because of one mans' vision, Carlton Terry, to have a healing space where practitioners could offer people in our community services for healing their mind, body and spirit. We have over 23 offices in this sacred space. Some of the practitioners are Mental Health Therapists, some are Massage Therapists, we have an Acupuncture Studio, a Chiropractor, a Marriage and Family Counselor and several Naturopathic Practitioners just to name a few. All are licensed professionals who offer their services to local people who can walk, take public transportation or drive from farther distances. The need for these services vs another apartment building can hardly be considered a superior choice. Would you tear down the King Soopers at 9th and Corona to build more living space? I hardly think so. The need for this building to remain as it is abundantly clear.

Nearly 94,000 residents have reported experiencing poor Mental Health in 2019, enough to fill Coors Field 2 times over. Mayor Michael Hancock reported this statistic in his report "Road To Wellness, A Strategic Framework To Improve Behavioral Health in Denver. To take this wonderful building away would be a tragic loss for the clients who come here for help, and for the Practitioners who make their living in these lovely healing spaces. There is no other building of this kind in Denver, the exterior and interior has a healing effect by just being in it. It has no sterile office atmosphere and the clients feel comfortable and at ease in these dedicated offices.

I, myself, am a Licensed Clinical Social Worker practicing Behavioral Health. I see a wide variety of people needing my services. I am a Military One Source Provider helping the Military men and women in active duty as well as some Veterans and their families. I am an Employee Assistance Provider where employees of major and small companies can utilize their EAP benefits for urgent personnel problems. I am a Provider with many national insurance companies in which policy holders can receive mental health therapy using their benefits. I have practiced in this Center for over 12 years.

The number of people walking through these doors are abundant. All the waiting rooms are full. We all have leases that the owner has threatened to break which brings the legality of this rezoning proposal into question. The clients will suffer, the practitioners livelihood is a big concern as well. To pass this proposal would be a disastrous mistake for the citizens of Capitol Hill and the City and County of Denver.

With Kind Regards,
Linda K Rice, LCSW

Hello,

My name is Sarah Callaway and I am a tenant of the CHHC in Room 204. I have been using this space to see clients since 2016. I LOVE this space and the character of the building. It is such a lovely place for my clients and my fellow colleagues. The location and parking make it such a gem in the city. Please consider our suggestions to keep the zoning in place so we can continue practicing here.
