Marijuana Education and Prevention

Since the beginning of legalization in Colorado, education has been one of Denver's top priorities. Denver, the first major city in the Country to legalize marijuana, has dedicated over 13 million dollars (2014 to 2018) of funding to prevention and education.

The Office of Marijuana Policy and its partners take a collaborative approach model that helps to reach kids and teenagers across the city. It strives to focus on supporting quality after-school and summer programs as well as diversion strategies with special attention to low-income neighborhoods.

The funds leverage existing best practices and processes to enhance quality programs and promote pro-social activities to youth living in an environment with legalized marijuana.
