3 Points to Consider as we discuss our Budget Priorities

- There is always a need for compromise, collaboration, and difficult decision making
- “Getting everything you want” doesn’t translate into being a good negotiator
- Effective Listening is the most important skill. Your idea can become even better with input from the other parties involved

Denver City Council Racial Equity Lens

1. Are all historically disadvantaged groups who are affected by the decision we are making currently represented in this process including those who have been historically oppressed because of their race, gender, sexual orientation, class, disability, immigration status and age? Have we heard the voices of those who are affected?
2. How will the proposed decision affect each group?
3. How will the proposed decision be perceived by each group?
4. Does the decision advance racial equity or mitigate unintended consequences?
