Improved Approach to Addressing Unsheltered Homelessness

- Bringing people indoors to safety who otherwise may not access shelter
- Focus on encampment resolution and moving people indoors
- Aligning to United States Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH) federal best practices for addressing encampments humanely and effectively

“While we have a long way to go to end and prevent homelessness, Denver is showing the nation that homelessness is solvable—especially when we treat people experiencing it with the respect and dignity that they deserve.”

— Jeff Olivet, Executive Director, U.S. Interagency Council on Homelessness

“At Community Solutions we understand that homelessness is solvable...I’m grateful to the entire Denver community for the way in which you have courageously taken up this mantle and embarked upon the path of ending unsheltered homelessness in your community.”

— Rosanne Haggerty, President, Community Solutions

“I applaud the energy and effort to address homelessness this first year, and I’m confident that the next year will be even better.”

— Donald Burnes, Co-Founder, The Burnes Institute for Poverty Research at the Colorado Center on Law and Policy

Transforming Lives of Those Experiencing Unsheltered Homelessness

“I found humanity here.”

- Christina, Elati Micro-Community

Transforming Denver's Neighborhoods

"We have noticed a dramatic impact from House1000. The streets have been far more welcoming. The neighborhood has just dramatically improved."

Marti Page
Asterisk Denver

"I've seen a tremendous transformation in just the last six months, both as a function of the walkability of how the streets feel, but more importantly, the optimism in the air, and how everyone else feels about really trying to reinvest in their businesses, come downtown, and create what we all appreciate which is a vibrant, Downtown Denver."

Chris Payne
Riverside Investment & Development

"We have noticed a significant decrease in the amount of homelessness in our neighborhood and around our restaurant."

Jonathan Tejada
Taco Bron

"We love doing business in Ballpark, and we can do it with more freedom right now since we're not dealing with safety and security. It's also making it a lot easier to recruit new hires to come down and work and participate in all things Ballpark."
