Amber J. Münck is a trial attorney with experience in virtually all aspects of complex class action and commercial litigation. She focuses her practice on a wide range of employment and business matters, including the defense of wage and hour class and collective actions and discrimination claims, as well as a broad range of business torts, real estate disputes, contracts and statutory claims.

Amber's employment practice involves counseling and representing employers with regard to their compliance with federal and state wage and hour laws, including the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA), Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1965, the American with Disabilities Act (ADA), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), the Colorado Wage Claim Act, Colorado Minimum Wage Act and Wage Order Number 24, and Colorado's Family Medical Leave Act, among others. She has defended employers in litigation involving claims of discrimination, harassment, retaliation, and wrongful termination, among others. Amber appears regularly in federal and state courts in Colorado and across the country, and defends employers against charges filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Colorado Civil Rights Division, and the Colorado Department of Labor. She recently acted as coordinating counsel in the defense of more than 70 class and collective actions nationwide for a Fortune 5 company. Amber represents other companies in the retail, restaurant service, automotive, logistics and consumer electronics industries, among others.

Amber advises and trains management and in-house counsel on a broad spectrum of employment issues, with an eye toward avoiding litigation altogether, including in the areas of hiring, firing, harassment, diversity, misconduct, leave and attendance, employee accommodations, employment and severance agreements, executive contracts, independent contractors, internal investigations, background checks, and employee handbooks and policies. She counsels clients on developing and enforcing best in class policies, employee handbooks, and employment and compensation agreements.

Experience

Representative Matters

- Acted as lead counsel for an international multibillion-dollar publicly traded company in connection with a real estate development and lien dispute.
- Counseled companies on various aspects of employment law, including employment agreements, restrictive covenants, employee handbooks, separation agreements and administrative proceedings.
- Commercial litigation in both state and federal courts, including jury trials, bench trials, dispositive motions, arbitrations and appeals.
- Represented private and public entities in connection with litigation and counseling with respect to employment matters arising under Title VII, FMLA, ADA, and state wage and hour and anti-discrimination statutes.
- Assisted with the handling of trademark infringement actions, trademark dilution actions, and trademark opposition and cancellation proceedings for a leading international real estate brokerage company.
- Assisted in the defense of a former high-ranking Enron executive in his white collar criminal trial and in numerous civil proceedings. Work as the trial and courtroom logistics manager for the team, was featured in the Houston Chronicle and The Wall Street Journal. Involved with pre-trial discovery and motion practice and assisted on all aspects of the trial, from argument to witness preparation to witness examination.
- Member of trial team for a Fortune 500 international entertainment and media company in the longest running dispute in Los Angeles County, arising out of the company's licensing and merchandising rights of a well-known cartoon character. Developed and briefed complex legal arguments, including one that helped secure a judgment of dismissal following a trial of a motion for terminating sanctions.

- Assisted in the defense of a global media and technology company in a multi-pronged patent infringement suit regarding the way in which television scheduling information and programs are delivered to a viewer, manipulated by the viewer and watched on the screen.
- Defended on appeal a judgment of dismissal against an individual alleging antitrust price fixing claims by a Fortune 500 entertainment company.
- Handled a number of matters, ranging from mediations, to plaintiffs' cases, to malpractice suits.

°Some of the above representations were handled by Ms. Münck prior to her joining Greenberg Traurig, LLP.

<http://www.ucdenver.edu/academics/colleges/SchoolOfEducation/FacultyandResearch/Pages/Faculty-Directory.aspx>

I am thrilled to join the School of Education & Human Development as Dean and, to accept the privilege and responsibility of leading our talented faculty and staff in providing outstanding programs and contributing important new knowledge to the fields of education and human development through research and scholarship. I'm arriving at a very exciting time for the University, as it builds upon the recent consolidation with the Anschutz Medical Campus, and continues to define itself as an urban-serving, research-intensive institution. I share the passion of the faculty for working hard to understand the distinctive character and needs of our urban context and, for preparing excellent teachers, mental health providers, educational leaders and scholars for their professional settings.

I grew up in the 50s and 60s in the city of all cities—NYC, in diverse, immigrant neighborhoods in Brooklyn and Queens, the granddaughter of Eastern European and Russian immigrants. My extended family was large and long-lived! My great aunts, uncles, grandparents and great-grandparents were a huge part of my childhood, adolescence and into adulthood. The messages from them were clear and consistent: you must get an education; you must always put family-first; and, you must give back to your communit(ies). I listened and earned my bachelors from the University of Rochester in developmental psychology and linguistics, and my masters (and teaching certifications in early childhood and deaf education) and my doctorate (in language and cognition) at Boston University's School of Education. Teaching was considered a noble profession in my family and highly encouraged. So, not surprisingly, my brother, sister and I all ended up in different kinds of careers in higher education! And, my husband and children, parents, siblings, cousins and remaining aunts and uncles remain a very tight-knit clan.

My teaching journey started in early childhood and elementary schools in Boston and then, Columbus Ohio — first in schools for the deaf (I am a fluent signer) and then in various inclusive early childhood programs, including full-day childcare. I have about ten years of direct program/classroom experience, including work as an Assistant Professor and the Director of the Lab School at The Ohio State University. Over time, I moved through several positions at OSU — achieving rank and tenure as Full Professor. In total, I served 23 years as a faculty member, teacher, researcher and mentor with several administrative experiences along the way. I had a lively life as a researcher with many external grants to study classrooms as social contexts for teaching and learning, and to reform the ways we prepare teachers in partnership with schools.

Six years ago, I was invited to be Director of the School of Teaching and Learning at OSU for a school about the same size as the School of Education & Human Development. While I was somewhat of an accidental tourist to administration, I found that I had arrived at a place in my career where I thoroughly enjoyed the challenges of leadership and management as well as the thrill of being part of putting the wind under the wings of talented faculty. I led the School through a time of major change—adopting the semester calendar, growing the base of research grants, designing many new programs and hiring a large group of outstanding faculty.

In all, I spent 29 years as a Buckeye in a rich and rewarding career of teaching, research, service and administration, but knew a few years ago that I wanted to move on. I wanted to challenge myself, and make a different kind of contribution. I took my time looking for the position I truly wanted because I knew that yanking roots out of the ground that had been growing for 29 years would be hard. When I saw the position advertisement for the Dean of SEHD at the University of Colorado Denver, I knew I had found a good fit for me. I was drawn by the urban setting, the incredible network of school and community partnerships in both teacher and counselor preparation and research collaboratives. I was intrigued by the transformation that is taking place through the University of Colorado/Anschutz Medical Campus consolidation and the quality of the faculty, students and upper leadership. My visits here just confirmed my interest and I knew I had found my next home.

Although I grew up on the 9th floor of high rise apartment buildings in NYC, I spent my summers from toddlerhood to adolescence with my grandparents and their siblings in the Catskill mountains, 60 hours north of the city—during the hey-day of life in the "Borscht Belt." Here, I fell in love with the mountains and the great outdoors. We climbed trees, hiked paths, swam, biked, canoed and fell exhausted into bed every night. So, I am equally at home riding public transportation and living in the heart of the city as I am enjoying the mountain life of the Rockies. My husband (of 33 years) and children and I are avid skiers, bikers, hikers and love the winter! When not exercising or playing outdoors, I also have a passion for cooking and love the abundance of fresh, local produce and food in this area.

I have a very supportive husband, and two, grown wonderful children—a son, Evan, a 2007 graduate of the University of Dayton, remains in Columbus where he has an interesting job in marketing for a start-up market research firm. My daughter, Maxine, a 2011 CU Boulder graduate, is assistant manager of the men's department at the Nordstrom Rack. I am learning the joys of sharing a life with adult children and my new role as coach and confidante as they wind their way through the "20s"—times of challenge and change. My husband, Reed Martin, is an MBA (Dartmouth College) and Chief Operating Officer of Surgical Management Professionals of South Dakota—a company that joint ventures with surgeons to develop and manage free-standing surgery centers all around the country. Lucky for me, he could pack up and move to Colorado easily. He needs a home office and an airport and he can work from anywhere!

My door is usually open and I welcome students, staff and faculty to walk-in, sit and share their stories, lives, hopes and dreams. Together, I know we will take the SEHD to the next level of achievement as a first-class program leader among Schools in the nation and make significant contributions to the Denver Metro Area, and Colorado.

Susan Steele, Executive Director, Temple Hoyne Buell Foundation

Susan received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Northern Colorado and began her career as a middle school math teacher. After several years of teaching, she moved into the business arena serving in management and accounting positions for several family-owned businesses in Denver. She joined the Buell Foundation as controller in 1993. In 1998 she was named Executive Director.

During her tenure, she has helped guide the foundation to prominence as a leader in early childhood development throughout the state of Colorado. Under her leadership, the Foundation was recognized as the Colorado Foundation of the Year in 2012. In 2013, Susan was appointed to the Colorado Early Childhood Leadership Commission, where she helps to advise the Office of Early Childhood on issues related to early childhood education and development. Susan currently serves on the Management Team for the Buell Early Childhood Leadership Program at the University of Colorado at Denver and has played an important role in the creation of the Buell Early Childhood Leadership Network. Both of these groups exist to nurture and build the leadership capacity of experienced and emerging leaders to create equity, opportunity, and educational excellence for all young children and their families in Colorado. She also chairs the Early Childhood Funders Collaborative and is immediate past president of the Colorado Association of Funders. Susan is one of the founding partners that created Colorado EPIC and remains an active member on the governing board today.
