

Executive Summary

Article XVII, Electronic Records Services – Office of the Clerk and Recorder

The Clerk and Recorder has a duty to accept, store and make publicly available certain documents. In order to accomplish this task the office has made and continues to make considerable investment into computer systems and software. Various customers and companies make great use and considerable profit from accessing these computer systems from recording, searching and data access points. The updated fee schedule allows the office of the clerk and recorder to recover some of the cost invested into making this possible without placing an unfair burden on the citizens or public.
