JOURNALISM | DIGITAL MEDIA | CULTURAL CONSULTING

40 years experience in writing, editing, being a newsroom leader and innovator, creating online media brands, engaging with social media; facilitating the evolution of news media; serving as a mentor and helping young journalists; amplifying the voices of Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders; and helping companies and organizations be more culturally competent in a diverse world.

Professional Experience

Colorado Media Project

2019-present

Diversity, Equity & Inclusion Consultant

Helping the Colorado Media Project (<https://coloradomediaproject.com>), an organization funded by foundations and University of Denver, which is working to find ways to make local news sustainable in our new media industry paradigm. Our initiatives include membership (not subscriptions or paywalls), public funding of local news, a project to increase coverage of the arts at a time when major media outlets are cutting back their arts coverage, and helping newsrooms cover immigration stories. My role is to make sure that diversity is always considered in the CMP's work, with promoting diversity in newsrooms, supporting minority news organizations and making sure communities of color are not forgotten in "mainstream" media coverage, and to ensure that communities of color and underserved voices are heard in the discussion of local news issues.

Manager of Student Media

2010-present

University of Colorado College of Media, Communication & Information, Boulder, CO

Staff adviser to the CU Independent, responsible for managing the award-winning student-run news website for the University of Colorado in Boulder. Train student journalists and introduce emerging digital media concepts and social media to www.cuindependent.com. Notable Accomplishments: CU Independent has received numerous awards from the Society of Professional Journalists and been a finalist in Hearst Student Journalism Awards, and also received Online Pacemaker Award from Associated College Press.

Cultural Communications Consultant/Blogger

1999-present

Nikkei View LLC - www.nikkeiview.com

Began writing weekly column about the Japanese and Japanese American community in 1999 for Denver Japanese community newspaper, which evolved into a blog (www.nikkeiview.com) covering pan-Asian and Japanese American pop culture, identity and issues. Also cover issues affecting Japan and Asia. Serve as adviser to organizations, local governments and companies. Notable accomplishments: Book about the history and culture of Japanese Americans, "Being Japanese American" (Stone Bridge Press, 2004, revised edition 2015), as well as speaking invitations on topics of Asian American and Japanese culture and identity, including at anime conventions. Have been interviewed as an expert by NPR's "Pacific Time," Colorado Public Radio, The Denver Post, Fort-Worth Star-Telegram, LA Times, and many other media. Local Asian community coverage published on Huffington Post Denver.

AARP AAPI Marketing Communications Consultant

2014-2019

AARP - <https://www.facebook.com/AARPAAPI/>

Create social media posts and editorial content focused on AAPI 50+ topics for AARP's AAPI Multicultural Leadership Team. Contribute to AARP's AAPI homepage (www.aarp.org/aapi), Twitter and Facebook accounts and focus on driving social media engagement and dialogue within the pan-Asian community. Notable accomplishments: Grew initial Facebook page "Likes" from 80 to 22,000, increased social media engagement rates, established regular editorial presence on AARP's "Voices" blog and aarp.org website, and managed high-profile successful promotions including annual "Asian American Hero Awards."

Engagement Manager MIKADO International	2018-2019
Served as Asian and Asian American community liaison, created social media content, advised on media campaigns and publicity releases and attend AAPI conferences for Denver-based multicultural advertising and consulting agency with national and international clients marketing to Asian, Asian American, immigrant and Muslim audiences.
Manager of Audience Development MediaNews Group Interactive, Denver, CO	2008-2010
Responsible for increasing audience reach of MNGi's websites, including The Denver Post, San Jose Mercury News and over 60 other newspapers, by training journalists on using social media, Search Engine Optimization techniques and adding new interactive features such as content aggregation, curation, mapping, pay walls. Anticipated rise of tablets and e-readers, and produced white paper for MNGi leadership on adapting news media to New digital platforms in 2007 (first Kindle debuted 2007, iPad debuted in 2010); managed content distribution partnerships for Sony tablets, Kindle.
Director of Content Examiner.com, Denver, CO	2007-2008
Responsible for managing editorial content on Examiner.com, a national news brand with localized news and information for 57 separate cities. Managed online editors in newspaper newsrooms in San Francisco, Washington DC and Baltimore.
