| 5        | Elizabeth  | Emmens    | 80212      | 1 mile  | The Beth Eden church's contribution to the West Highland neighborhood is a physical manifestation of the spirit of the West Highlands community and its values. It welcomes neighbors, visitors and passers by each and every day - telling all of us: "you are welcome here." Religious or not, our churches & architecture tell the story of who we are as a community. Beth Eden can be preserved and re-infused with the life that it once actively provide our community - if given the respect it deserves. This church is important to the sense of who we are - where we have been, who we say we are to future residents and visitors and what we value. It must be preserved.   |

Preserving structures like Beth Eden add character to our neighborhoods and help to identify neighborhoods rather than areas like Highlands Ranch that have no identity and few landmarks.   |

It's not often that we have the opportunity to keep a recognizable historic structure from the wrecking ball. These unique, seasoned, architecturally-sound structures deserve a place in the history of this beautiful neighborhood. With more and more older homes being razed, we are losing the appeal and integrity of our area which is why many of us moved into this part of Denver. The Highlands, Berkeley, Sunnyside, etc. neighborhoods have become targets for mass destruction by developers who have no stake in our area other than that of making more bang for the buck. While there are some architecturally-appealing homes/duplexes being built on lots that once housed homes that have had their day in the sun, the majority (90-95%) of the houses/structures being built do not have architectural plans other than the 'build a box' plans as in Sunset magazine for ex. They stick out like a sore thumb w/no congruency w/other houses in the area. I truly love living in this area and getting to know my neighbors through the many endeavors that have come forth over the past 20 yrs to keep our neighborhood intact is frosting on the cake, so to speak... |

| 14 | Jonathan    | Ford           | 80211 | 1/2 mile | I live within a block & 1/2 of this Historic Church. We have already seen 2/3rds of this property torn down and now is a gaping hole in our neighborhood. As a long term NW Denver resident (17+ years) I strongly oppose more demolition of our historic structures - be they residential, commercial, or non-profit. | 40 | Greg        | Bettridge      | 80211 | 5 miles  | I, in fact, live about 1.5 miles from the church. But for fifteen years I lived three blocks away from it in a house where my wife and daughters still live. Progress, my friends, is not ever increasing densities in our historic neighborhoods. What made 'West Highlands' a great place to live and raise our family was that it was an oasis in the city of a small commercial corridor surrounded and largely supported by the community surrounding it. Now it is a destination for the entire city and developers who want to capitalize on that popularity and the uniqueness that brought everyone to the neighborhood in the first place. I support your efforts to preserve one of the icons of the neighborhood and for recognizing that the richness and history of a place resides in its artifacts, not in the shadows of the rush to exploit its popularity. |
| 41 | Adam        | Bauman         | 80211 | 1/2 mile | I believe that a responsible development could be build on the parcel where Beth Eden Church sits today that will incorporate the building to preserve the historical building and neighborhood.  |

| 45 | Denise   | Ross        | 80211 | 1/2 mile | I agree that saving the church will serve as a buffer between expected 'modern' development and the single family housing adjacent. I've lived here for 36 years and definitely see it as a local landmark.   |

| 48 | sandra   | doran       | 80211 | 1 mile   | Shame on you Denver for ignoring the will of the people who opposed Red Peak development because 5 stories modern ruins the quaint character of the Highlands. Redeem yourself and save the church!   |
| 49 | Beth     | Scherer     | 80211 | 1 mile   | I believe the constant razing of our older homes and structures in NW Denver is very short sighted. We pay lots of money to travel to European countries to see antiquities while destroying our own. I also believe that it is a waste of resources to demolish old buildings that can be renovated and that continuing to do so will be our downfall ie waste not want not. I currently live within a mile of Beth Eden but because the city has not chosen to halt the construction of ultra modern square boxes that they call townhomes I am looking for somewhere else to move that is more old house friendly. I have lived in NW Denver for 30 years and it breaks my heart to see the destruction of our unique neighborhoods.         |

| 52 | nick     | cioffredi   | 80211 | 1/2 mile | It would truly be a shame to forget the past and lose this remarkable architectural historic icon in our neighborhood. Beyond the neighboring houses which depict a piece of american history and style, the church is one of the last major icons near the heart of the Highlands at 32nd and Lowell depicting a very complex time in history. How many people attended Sunday service only to be followed with a ride on the 32nd Ave trolly in their Sunday best. It was a location for the community to gather, support one another, and a backbone to the neighborhood. Its easy to see that it no longer serves the same function but it remains the iconic backbone and how can one stand without well founded structure ... a backbone. |

|    |         |          |       |          | I have lived in NW Denver for 49 years! I have attended North High School and have been a resident of this amazing community for all of those 49 years. I have seen the changes that have been brought the area at 32nd and Lowell. From the time that Speer Furniture was in the Chipotles location to when Common Grounds and Hides first moved into their now old locations. I firmly believe that we must maintain our history while our future grows. After all most of the businesses that are located in the area are in the older buildings that make this unique area what it is! The Beth Eden Church should be granted a historic designation not only for it architecture but for its 83 years as a fixture within this historic district. |

Fusing contemporary lofts into an historic church is a winning combination and will help the Highlands preserve the old with the new. Let's not forget the debacle of the 'urban renewal' of the early 1970s that saw many beautiful historic structures demolished. We are smarter than that now.  |

| 100 | Christina | Morris       | 80201 | 1/2 mile | As an architect that lives just a few blocks from this church, it is of my opinion, that it is imperative that this church be saved. Not only to try and maintain some piece of the past when horrendous new buildings are built, but also to preserve the reason people have moved to this neighborhood in the first place. We didn't move to this neighborhood to have new, horrible box buildings like the suburbs, we moved here for the history and timelessness of old structures. Take that away and Highlands will no longer be what it was and people will not want to stay. |
| 101 | Emily     | Haack        | 80211 | 1/2 mile | I've lived in this same house in the West Highlands for 37 years. The Beth Eden Church has always been an important element of the charm of the neighborhood. Please don't further sterilize our neighborhood by destroying a major presence in the heart of the Highlands Square.  |

To think Denver does not want to protect such a beautiful architectural gem is a shock to say the least. How sad our society has become to not value the past any more than this.   |

|     |         |            |       |          | Parking Solution for Highlands Square Area (32nd &amp; Lowell) Now that the lawsuit concerning the proposed huge unwanted development in the Highlands Square area, 32nd and Lowell, Mead and Moncrieff have been resolved, it is now time for the neighborhood to move quickly to resolve the parking situation in the Highland Square area. Parking in this area has been a problem for over 15 years and to date the City's solution has been to issue residential parking permits and patrol the area for scofflaws issuing parking tickets to violators. This resolution has 2 negative effects: 1. Parking violators who are issued tickets are not happy and are much less likely to return to Highlands Square to do business and support the local businesses. 2. The neighbors who live in close proximity to Highland Square still have problems finding parking either in front of their home or close by. This is a problem for example if they are returning from the supermarket with multiple bags or the weather is inclement. Yes, I know you are not guaranteed parking in front of your home, but I do believe with ample parking provided and City enforcement, a person would have a reasonable expectation of close to home parking. Since Red Peak has withdrawn from their development agreement with Mr. Wooten and several of the old church buildings have been demolished leaving an unsightly fenced off lot, I propose that the West Highland Neighborhood Association (WHNA) the local Highlands Square businesses and the whole neighborhood support and demand that our City Council representative have the City declare Eminent Domain on all 3 properties and turn the unsightly blighted lots into metered paid parking lots. The properties are blighted and unsightly and it would be in the best interest of the neighborhood to quickly resolve the ongoing parking issue that has plagued the area for over 15 years. Parking enforcement takes City resources to patrol the area for parking scofflaws. Issuing parking tickets is counter productive as it drives business away from Highlands Square. I recommend that the Highland Square businesses, the WHNA and the community demand that the City act on declaring Eminent Domain on these 3 blighted properties and turn them into paid parking lots. Being metered paid parking lots will help finance the acquisition, construction and maintenance of the lots. With 2014 being an election year, this must be done ASAP, to prevent the politicians from delaying the decision till after the election. All the politicians from the Mayor to our City Council member plus the 2 At-Large City Council members who need the West Highland votes to get reelected. Sincerely Anthony Cooper West Highlands |

While it's great to revitalize the city and help the economy, it's important that the city preserve the historic culture that makes this city a great place to live. We need to make sure new buildings "fit in" with the surrounding area and carefully approve new projects. This church is an icon of historic Highland Square and it would be a shame to tear it down and replace such historic architecture with a boxy, contemporary, high density condo building like those taking the rest of the city by storm. Please preserve this church and our historic buildings. |

| 212 | Francis   | Heaney       | 80211-3140 | 1/2 mile | Denver, Colorado was incorporated on November 7, 1861 which makes it a relative newcomer amongst major cities of the world. Seeing as Denver is of fairly recent creation we don't have as much in the way of historical structures as many other cities so we can't afford to squander what we have. Beth Eden Church has stood at it's current site since 1931 which tells me that in not too many years it will have stood there longer than any of us living around the church have been alive. That defines historical for me. Beth Eden Church needs to be preserved. |

|     |         |            |            |          | I used to live around the block from the Beth Eden Church, at the time when it was still the vibrant, community-based Highlands Church. I now live less than a half mile away. This site dates back to the beginnings of the West Highland neighborhood and as a result is a clear representation of the community's character. It is a shame that this plot and the others slated for development have been given clearance for density that is out of the character of the neighborhood, but that ship has sailed. However, incorporating the Beth Eden Church into the new development is not. Ensuring its preservation will allow the existing and new to come together, to respect the history and character of the neighborhood while also exercising sustainable development. As a city that is striving to become one of the "greenest," preserving and reusing the Beth Eden Church as a complementary component of the new development is a terrific step in that direction. Thank you for considering my comments. |

We do not oppose growth within the city; however, we feel that the preservation of the old is essential and is what initially brought so many people to love Denver. There have been many other cities across the country that have also discovered the same growth opportunities and without vision they have torn down many of these historical sites only to realize later their mistake. Please help preserve this site and not loose the historical beauty that the city still possesses.  |

| 263 | Carla        | McConnell  | 80230      | 10 miles | Designation of Beth Eden Church will ensure adaptive reuse of the structure within the larger development. Adaptive reuse will result in a more interesting development, a better architectural transition to the existing neighborhood and a more diverse urban environment for all of us.  |

| 277 | Stephanie  | Oram       | 80211 | 1/2 mile | The owner knew it was historic when he bought it. He should not be allowed to devastate the neighborhood just because it's now inconvenient.  |
| 278 | Roger      | Oram       | 80211 | 1/2 mile | I am signing this petition because it is only in the developer's interest that the building be razed. Red Peak is no friend to our neighborhood: the detrimental effects of the 4 to 5 story buildings Red Peak has promulgated will over-populate the area and exacerbate the already compounded congestion during the last few years. The building has historic value to Lowell Blvd and is a bit of a barrier to the wanton destruction of the historic landscape of our neighborhood. If the church building were destroyed, how much further north would the builder or another builder extend the misplaced condo project? The owner of this property should be liable for the appropriate restoration of it, as Red Peak has destroyed as much of the "non-historic" attractive addition as it has been legally allowed. |

| 285 | Lee        | Cooper     | 81503 | 1 mile   | I used to live on Raleigh Street near the historic church, but I now live in Grand Junction. I vote for the preservation of the Beth Eden Church.   |
| 286 | Sherry     | Crawford   | 80211 | 5 miles  | This is a historic landmark that all of us in NW Denver recognize and love when walking and driving the neighborhood. It is important to preserve this history because the this building helps to tell the story of the creation and development of the Highlands area. It is also a beautiful building that stands out among the ugly new structures that do not fit into the neighborhood.  |

| 288 | Laura      | Herlands   | 80212 | 1 mile   | It is disheartening to see beautiful and historically significant buildings around Denver demolished. It tears the fabric of our unique city apart and erases the foundation of what many of us moved here for. Please preserve this wonderful church. Thank you, Laura   |

| 292 | Joan      | Bolduc    | 80212 | 1 mile   | Please, Historic Denver, do whatever you can to save what's left of this neighborhood landmark. Developers were allowed to build that monstrosity a few doors up on Lowell because of the height of Beth Eden church. Now they got their height precedence, they want to trash Beth Eden. Please help preserve our neighborhood's character.   |

There is nothing like them and once they are gone they are gone. I experienced that in my home town in Whitewater, Wisconsin. They tore down an old mill that had been a part of our history for many many years. That portion of history is gone never to be enjoyed. |

It is representative of this part of the city, its history and cultural makeup. A structure such as this should not be torn down. I have no problem with it being incorporated into another project, tastefully, but I see no reason to allow it to be demolished.   |

Let's look at places like Linger, REI, and the Source to see the amazing things that can be done by revitalizing a beautiful old building. This is our opportunity to show that we as a city are committed to sustainable growth and will continue to adopt sustainable practices in all aspects of our lives. Or will we just pay it lip service? |
