Re: Donation of Driving Simulator to the Community College of Aurora

In 2003 the City Risk Management Office purchased a driving simulator for the Denver Police Department to use in the Police Academy. This Simulator was used through 2008, at which time the Department started to change its training methods.

The simulators are no longer used and can no longer be upgraded. They have been completely depreciated.

The Community College of Aurora has expressed an interest in having these simulators for use in their public safety training program. In 2013 the City donated a Fire Department simulator to the College.

Please let me know if you need any additional information regarding this donation.
