

Amy Mueller Bio

Amy Mueller is the Director of Government Relations for Kaiser Permanente – Colorado Region. She is responsible for policy and advocacy work at the State level on behalf of Colorado's largest non-profit health plan.

Prior to this role, Amy worked for the City & County of Denver for more than 6 years (2004-2010), serving first as Deputy Director of Public Works, then as Deputy Chief of Staff to Denver Mayor John Hickenlooper, helping to manage the City and implement the Mayor's initiatives. Amy's work included a combination of policy, management, and project work. Areas of focus included implementation of the Better Denver Bond Program, management of federal stimulus (ARRA) funds, negotiations regarding union contracts, supporting daily City operations, and advising the Mayor on both short and long-term projects and policies.

Amy also worked for the City of Boulder as Policy Advisor and Intergovernmental Relations Coordinator. In that role, she developed a focus on transportation and infrastructure projects, from early environmental studies to finance and implementation. She helped area elected officials promote solutions and funding for the US 36 corridor through creation of the US 36 Mayors/Commissioners Coalition. She also increased federal funding for projects in the City of Boulder through creation of a more focused legislative strategy.

Amy worked for Governor Romer as a legislative liaison during his third and final term, and started her career representing students before the Colorado

General Assembly on issues such as tuition and financial aid.

Amy has a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from Colorado State University, and a Master of Public Administration from the University of Colorado – Denver.

She also studied at Moscow State University. She has attended a number of leadership programs including the State and Local Government Executives Program at the Kennedy School of Government, the Downtown Denver Leadership Program, and the Denver Community Leadership Forum.

She lives in Stapleton with Dave, Abby, Charlie, Sam and Joe.
