EXHIBIT A SCOPE OF SERVICES

- INTRODUCTION

The Denver Department of Parks and Recreation will provide $133,000 per year to Summer Scholars to implement the Summer Scholars Recreation Program, a project in conjunction with the Summer Scholars literacy program, geared toward enhancing summer recreation opportunities for youth in Denver. This sub recipient non-profit organization will operate its project activities that will principally benefit low- and moderate-income persons during the contract term of June 1, 2010 through August 30, 2015.

- PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Summer Scholars will act as the contractual entity. The goal of the project is to implement the Summer Scholars Recreation Program, held in the afternoons in conjunction with the Summer Scholars literacy program. The Summer Scholars Recreation Program is intended to serve as an incentive for students to participate in the morning literacy program and as a complement to the academic nature of the morning program. Participants in the Summer Scholars program are primarily low-income youth who are in need of extra help with reading. Participants in Summer Scholars read below established grade levels, and academic failure in elementary school is an established risk factor for later issues related to juvenile delinquency, teen pregnancy, and substance abuse. Furthermore, a lack of access to recreation services is another risk factor for low income youth. Summer Scholars' literacy and recreation programs seek to offset the risk factors of academic failure and lack of access to recreation services.

Community Recreation operates recreation programs in conjunction with some Summer Scholars program sites, but Community Recreation does not have the capacity to operate the programs at all of the sites. Summer Scholars will administer the recreation programs at sites not coordinated by Community Recreation. The Summer Scholars Recreation Program will be coordinated with the recreation programs provided by Community Recreation, and will complement Community Recreation Programs by adding overall capacity to serve youth in Northeast Denver.

Summer Scholars will provide summer recreation services in conjunction with its summer literacy program at multiple Denver Public Elementary School partners for 50 -100 students per site. The program will operate daily for four to six weeks during June and July. Hours of operations will be 11:30AM - 4:00PM. The recreation program will be a licensed child care program. Summer Scholars will provide overall administration, hiring and supervision of staff, program development and implementation, maintenance of child care licensure, and liaison with other program components.

Summer Scholars will also provide swimming lessons to the participants in both Summer Scholars and Parks and Recreation programs offered in conjunction with the Summer Scholars summer literacy program. Lessons will be held at the Manual High School or other DPS pool and will follow the format of Red Cross approved swim lessons. Students will participate in 6 or more half hour lessons during a two week swim lesson session. Instructors will be swim lesson certified and will provide instruction based on the scope and sequence of Red Cross lessons and the students' abilities. Students will be transported from the site of their recreation program to the pool for lessons.

Here is a sample of weekly activities in the Summer Scholars recreation program:

Field Trips will include activities such as:

Stiles Museum

Museum of African-American history featuring individuals important in sports, local history, medicine and more. Students will explore the museum's artifacts.

Apex Ice Arena

Apex Ice Arena in Jefferson County closes off one of its ice skating rinks for Summer Scholars to students to use for two hours. This is a "first" for many of our students and a rare treat for many others. Occasional bumps and bruises are common on these field trips as ice is hard, but it is a good time remembered by everyone.

Plains Conservation Center

Journey out to the Colorado plains east of Denver and back in time to Cheyenne camps and sod villages on this unique at Plains Conservation Center. Students will take a wagon ride out onto the plains where prairie dogs, pronghorn, and meadowlarks are commonly seen. Next students will explore an 1837 Cheyenne Indian camp of tipis and game of skill. An 1887 sod home completes the day with playing games, feeding chickens and marveling at home construction. It is hot on the prairie in the summer so hats, suntan lotion, and water bottles are a must.

The daily recreation program is augmented by enrichment activities offered by external service providers, such as:

Audubon Society of Greater Denver – Invertebrates, birds, homes and food chains will provide the catalyst for students exploring nature in the school's backyard. This week is filled with outside activities.

Children's Art School, Jo Duranceau – Students will create their own cartoon character to star in the Summer Scholars Comics. Write your own story line with balloon and Wham Bam sound effects. Learn the action packed secret steps to publicize your own comic capers.

Children's Chorale – Students will practice and perform musical selections complete with actions. This is a good time to invite parents to the final performance.

Colorado Mountain Club (CMC) – Daily program will focus on water and the environment with hands-on activities, games and art projects. Primarily outdoors but do need an indoor gym or classroom for some activities. Please have nametags on students.

Girl Scouts – For girls only of all ages, the day will consist of a two hour program on math and science technology. All girls will meet for the entire time and be broken into smaller groups with each of the Scout provided staff.

Gray Matters – Science will never be the same after marshmallow molecules and cookie rocks. Please provide crayons, scissors, paper, rules, and blackboard with students divided into smaller groups by age.

Junior Achievement – Summer Scholars will help pilot a new JA after school program. Students will make and sell friendship bracelets or bookmarks while learning the basics of business. After the initial training, sites implement the lessons at your own schedule. Questions can be addressed to:

Magic with Gary Outlaw – Gary is a clown school graduate who uses magic and juggling in his acts. His classes will introduce students to different types of magic tricks. Students will learn to perform several tricks and will make tricks to take home. They will also try some juggling and explore the types and meaning of different clown faces.

Mizel Museum – Explore the magical world of masks. The program will explore the cultural roles masks play: to heal, celebrate harvests and honor ancestors. Discover how masks help continue traditions such as the Purim celebration of the beautiful and courageous Queen Esther. Try on masks from around the world and examine how they are made. Create your own mask to celebrate a magical transformation.

Museo de las Americas – Explore Hispanic culture through hands-on music activities. Students will write their own corrido or ballad and use it to create a scene. They will also learn the Chilean legend of the rain stick and make one of their own (please help us save enough paper towel tubes for this craft). Students need to be divided into groups of 25-30 for one hour programs each. Program includes take-home activities.
