Executive Summary

The Federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program was enacted in 1974 to provide block grant funding for community development. CDBG assists urban, suburban, and rural communities to improve housing and living conditions and expand economic opportunities for low- and moderate-income persons.

Counties use the flexibility of CDBG funds to collaborate with private and nonprofit sector partners to develop and upgrade local housing, water, infrastructure, and human services programs. CDBG also helps to create jobs through the expansion and retention of businesses and is an important tool for helping local governments tackle serious challenges facing their communities. Counties rely on CDBG allocation to meet critical community development needs.

Nationwide, CDBG provides annual grants on a formula basis to nearly 1,200 metro and county governments in addition to states.

Across the country, these “local entitlement cities and counties” receive about 70 percent of CDBG funds, and states receive the remaining 30 percent. HUD determines the amount of each grant by using a formula including community need, poverty rates, population growth or lag measured in relationship to other metro areas, and housing issues, including the age of housing stock.

Here in Denver, CDBG funds are administered through Denver Economic Development & Opportunity (DEDO) for various neighborhood development projects such as public facilities or community improvements, and gap financing for small businesses, while Denver’s Department of Housing Stability (HOST) administers CDBG funds for affordable housing-related projects and programs. Each agency issues a Notice of Fund Availability (NOFA), conducts pre-proposal briefings, reviews proposals, and announces the awardees, typically on an annual basis.

NOFA applications are evaluated and scored by DEDO and HOST staff, other city agency staff, and community members. Community reviewers are chosen based on their knowledge and experience in the program areas (housing, neighborhood development, and business development). Awardees are selected based on their ability to achieve measurable outcomes supporting Mayor Hancock’s priorities as well as the city’s strategic plans for housing, community, and business investments. Evaluation criteria also scores each applicant’s project plan, organizational capacity, financial capacity, and prior performance when applicable.

CDBG funds also help leverage many programs and projects funded by city sources. The majority of development projects are funded through loans, helping to generate future program income from these loans for the city’s reinvestment into additional projects and programs.

Here is the ten-year summary of Denver’s CDBG allocations:

Program	Program Year	Authorized Amount
CDBG	2013	$7,170,263
CDBG	2014	$6,859,983
CDBG	2015	$6,687,320
CDBG	2016	$6,531,090
CDBG	2017	$6,602,257
CDBG	2018	$6,859,369
CDBG	2019	$6,796,880
CDBG	2020	$6,821,276
CDBG	2021	$6,740,253
CDBG	2022	$6,685,254
