SIPPRA Update

SIPPRA Overview

The Social Impact Partnerships to Pay for Results Act (SIPPRA) is a competitive award process through the U.S. Department of Treasury that provides grants to localities with the intention of improving the effectiveness of certain social services by utilizing a form of Pay For Results model.

- Facilitates the creation of public-private partnerships that bundle philanthropic or other private resources with existing public spending to scale up effective social interventions already being implemented by private organizations, nonprofits, charitable organizations, and State and local governments across the country.
- With the goal of improving the impact and effectiveness of vital social services programs while redirecting inefficient or duplicative spending for federal and local governments.

Overview cont.

DOF applied for the SIPPRA award in May 2019 as the Denver Housing to Health (H2H) Pay for Success project

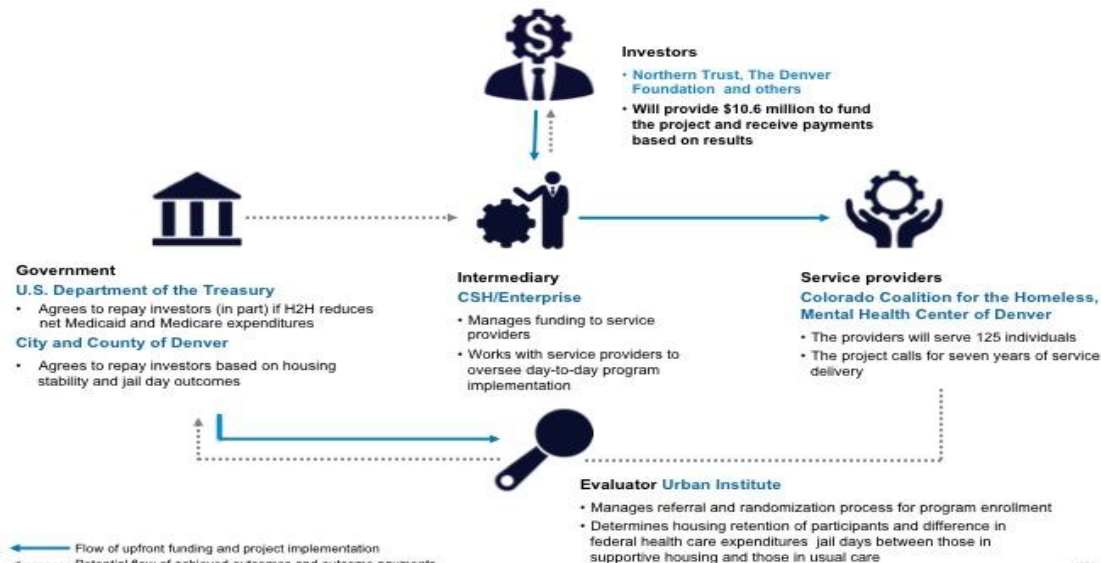

- H2H project leverages the infrastructure and partnerships established for Denver's pay-for-success Social Impact Bond (SIB),
- H2H seeks to break the community-to-jail cycle by increasing housing stability and decreasing jail time among people experiencing homelessness who are high users of the city's resources, and to improve health outcomes for participants.
