Artist Paula Castillo will create a series of three sculptures on the Denver Art Museum and Denver Central Library Campus that draw upon indigenous language history from the region for inspiration. These pieces will serve as welcoming gateways onto the campus and will invite further research and discovery at both institutions. The first, in the Ponti Plaza at Bannock and 14th St. will consist of a 22'-32' tall painted stainless-steel sculpture atop a tri-pod pedestal of stainless-steel poles. The second will be 12'-16' tall and made from laminated glass or porcelain enamel and stainless-steel supports. This sculpture consists of a large "X" shape near the main entry plaza to the library. The third sculpture will consist of stainless-steel "trestle" shapes attached over the elevated pedestrian ramp at 13th and Acoma. The lowest arch will be 9' or taller and the tallest will be 23'. The budget is approximately $725,292.09. The artist will work with Public Art staff, members of the design and construction team, the Department of Transportation and Infrastructure and Denver Art Museum and Denver Library staff when creating the preliminary design. The final designs and engineering plans will be stamped by a CO licensed engineer. The contract amount is $725,292.09 and is inclusive of all costs associated with the project including, but not limited to: the artist's design fee, other consultation fees such as structural engineering consultation, insurance (including Colorado Workers Compensation), tools, materials, fabrication, transportation, installation, any building or site modification required, travel to and from the site, per diem expenses, project documentation, contingency to cover unexpected expenses, and any other costs. For all work done on city property, prevailing wage requirements will be applied.
